

“Sea of Pandemics”

The beaches were vast and long,
The sea consumed the land in minutes,
I suppose that’s how they feel,
To be swallowed up by something so vast.
In the sea of pandemics,
I stumbled across the headline,
‘It’s time to head to one of Sligo’s beaches’
Published August 5th of last year,
How a headline changes in a matter of months.

Now as the sea rises,
It swallows up the sand,
But not only just that,
A sea of fighters swim lonely,
Afraid to come out of their shell.
